MAKE RETAIL MATTER

BEVITE™ ANNOUNCES ALPHA LAUNCH

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

New York City, December 16, 2016 — Bevite, Inc. today announced the launch of its Neighborhood Marketplace™, the industry's first shared commerce platform based on our proprietary block commerce (blockchain, blockshare, and blocktrade) technology that empowers people to buy-and-sell products together in their communities. Designed to address the low numbers of businesses participating online, the platform's primary features, the Neighborhood Storefront and Neighborhood Market, let people buy-and-sell products together based on a common pool of shared inventory of products available in their communities. First, the Neighborhood Storefront provides businesses a simple way to sell products from local ("in-store" or "in-location") inventory of goods and services, increasing their sales without sacrificing profits. Next, the Neighborhood Market provides consumers an easy way of buying products from current ("in-stock") availability of goods and services, saving them time and money. Lastly, the Neighborhood Marketplace enables both to sell products together by sharing inventories in their communities, allowing everyone to grow.
